Responding to a question from Stanford University President John Hennessy, Morris Chang discusses how playing a leadership role in the semiconductor industry allowed him to see the business opportunity for a manufacturing plant that serves companies without fabrication facilities.